Designer or by design, with a strong propensity for decoration or following a warm minimalism, new living needs have transformed the home's aesthetic. What are the characteristics that define the most beautiful homes in the world? Before the pandemic, perhaps we would have listed a number of adjectives that, today, after two years of being forced to stay indoors more than we should, have evolved and updated. With this in mind, we've selected the 20 best houses of 2022, capable of communicating the profound and subtle changes at hand, be it a trend, a reflective pause or an iconic project for the near future knocking at our doors.

An oasis of peace blurring the lines between indoors and outdoors in Singapore, by Right Angle Studio. The soul of the EJ Residence is all right there, sitting poised between two rooms in a continuous flow between contiguous and adjacent spaces, drawing an open floor plan that blurs all barriers. The apartment, on the edge of the metropolis, is a two-level urban refuge intended to leave clutter and chaos at the door.
