

IMAGICASA

Neutral Flexibility

EVA JANSSENS

Imagicasa

HH Apartment

Eva Janssens
20.12.2022

With the right dimensions, a room can make time stand still. HH Apartment originated from such idea. Inventive passageways and a genial conceptualisation resulted in a pleasant home basis where a young family of three can enjoy a peaceful cocoon.

It is Right Angle Studio that may take the credit for this project. The interior studio operates from Singapore and can deliver long-term happiness with several services. That is to say, the team is available for interior design, design direction, spatial planning, and interior decoration. Already from the start they decided to focus on both residential projects and commercial spaces. This time, they designed an apartment for a young family that feels like a luxurious lounge that at the same time homely invites you to have cosy conversations. With a serene hill that is surrounded by lush greenery as the location, a relaxed atmosphere is ensured.

The strong architecture of the residence clearly gets additional help from the open layout of the rooms. In the living area, a wooden portal is central: a typical element for the studio's style. Movable pivot screens make it possible to divide the inner space from the surrounding area. This flexibility is a great asset, seeing that it enables the residents to dose privacy and openness as they wish. Behind these doors, there is a snug TV corner with a desk and beautiful decoration.

The latter was, besides, a really personal aspect for the family. Namely, the walls exhibit a selection of art objects that they have collected on their travels from the last years.

Full article –
www.imagicasa.be/en/story/neutral-flexibility