Right Angle Studio distils spaces into functional and purposeful modules that fulfil living objectives timelessly. The design team turned a restrictive HDB typology into a voluminous flat that capitalises on the luxury of space. The end result is a minimalist yet functional home that is a perfect fit for a young family with a love for reductionism aesthetics.

The core feature of this minimally configured home is a continuous framed portal that cuts across the living and dining areas, linking the bedroom and kitchen while opening up the entire flat.

Classic Danish furniture pieces such as the CH20 Elbow chairs from Carl Hansen & Son and seamless carpentry elevate the minimal palette while composing an organic space – a canvas that evolves with the children.

Despite a constrained palette, the team enriched pockets of spaces within the flat with thoughtfully crafted details.

Uniformed light oak panels envelop the console, subtly demarcating the living zone, while a pair of Frag lounge chairs sit softly across the area, elevating the mood of the space. The luxury of this open plan is enhanced with maximised ceiling height. Invisible cove lighting illuminates the environment softly, instead of strong lighting statement.
