Right Angle Studio has completed a refined private office in Abu Dhabi, conceived for a select group of investors. The project reflects a careful balance of trust, discretion and welcome, expressed through a considered interplay of form, material and light.

At the heart of the floor plan lies a rotunda-inspired chamber, anchoring the sequence of spaces with quiet ceremony. A sculptural palm rises at its centre, illuminated by a circular skylight that radiates a soft halo across the reception zone. Encircled by vertical oak fins, the chamber operates as both arrival point and gathering hall, setting a tone of calm dignity while guiding movement deeper into the interior.

Surrounding work zones are defined with subtle partitioning and planted troughs, creating pockets of privacy without losing a sense of continuity. Overhead, a seamless barrisol ceiling bathes the area in an ambient glow, mirroring natural daylight and heightening comfort throughout the open plan. These elements establish an environment where focus and interaction coexist with ease.
