

designboom®

Two Wooden Platforms Settle in the Heart of Right Angle Studio's Residence

CHRISTINA VERGOPOULOU

designboom

The Residence

Christina Vergopoulou
05.09.2024

Right Angle Studio's design marries past, present, and future.

The Residence, designed by Singapore-based Right Angle Studio (RAS), represents a new phase in the studio's architectural approach, building on their previous project, 'Residence L'. This duplex apartment blends elements of the past, present, and future into a cohesive spatial experience.

The interior features minimalist areas designed for social interaction. The dining area includes a custom display shelf, which is seamlessly incorporated into the walls, contributing to a unified layout. The open kitchen is equipped with a bar counter, reflecting its origins.

In the living area, sliding ash wood screens create visual separation while allowing views of the serene garden. A planted tree on the lower level acts as a symbol of growth and connects the indoor space with nature.

Full article – www.designboom.com/architecture/two-wooden-platforms-heart-right-angle-studio-residence-09-05-2024